

Professor Susan Bisom-Rapp Shares Expertise on Sexual Harassment Claims

A noted expert and author on workplace law, Professor Susan Bisom-Rapp was quoted several times in an article in the Sunday, September 15, issue of the Sacramento Bee. The article described a law suit filed by two former Sacramento county employees against the county alleging sexual harassment by their former supervisor. Apparently, Sacramento county, through its attorneys, strongly denies the allegations of the two women.

“In order to put the suit in perspective, I was asked by a reporter for the Sacramento Bee to address general national trends in sexual harassment including: its prevalence; whether it has gotten worse or better over time; how much employers pay out in settlement money; and how much employers spend on training employees on how to comply with the law,” said Professor Susan Bisom-Rapp “My response was that the picture is ambiguous.”

Why ambiguous? According to Professor Bisom-Rapp, it is difficult to get a "big picture" perspective on how many potential sexual harassment claims there could be nationwide.

“While overall, there has been a decline in total charges of sexual harassment filed with the federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and the state agencies with which the EEOC has work sharing agreements, we cannot conclude that this means there is less sexual harassment occurring in the workplace,” she noted. “There may instead be a number of things going on.”

“First,” said Professor Bisom-Rapp, “employers, in order to be able to defend against suits, have created anti-harassment policies and internal complaint procedures that may resolve cases quietly and out of view of the public. Second, when those internal processes fail to resolve matters, many employers require employees to use private dispute resolution mechanisms, like arbitration or mediation. There is therefore no filing with a government agency or court and the public never learns about these cases.

“Third, many cases settle and settlements frequently have confidentiality provisions that preclude the parties from talking about the facts of a given claim. Fourth, some employees fear retaliation and lodge no complaint at all, especially in a tough job market. They will either put up with conduct or quietly leave and attempt to find replacement employment.”

“All these factors,” she noted, “make it very hard to determine how prevalent and costly sexual harassment is in American society. We hear about the extraordinary cases because the media reports on those, but whether those cases are representative of what others experience is far from clear.”

Bloomberg.com Interviews Professor Semeraro on Credit Card Merchant Fee Litigation

The citation of a recent paper by Professor Steve Semeraro in a crucial expert report ordered by the Eastern District of New York in a class action case against Visa and MasterCard has led to some media interviews this week for the former attorney for the Department of Justice Antitrust Division who now teaches antitrust at TJSJL.

An article quoting Professor Semeraro about the case, which is a class action involving all merchants that accept those credit cards, appeared on Bloomberg.com on Sept. 12. Click here to view the Bloomberg article

Professor Semeraro also was interviewed on last week by the San Diego Daily Transcript regarding the case.

Apply Now for 2013 Lawyers Club/TJSJL Scholarship

Qualified students may now apply for the 2013 Lawyers Club Women & the Law Project Scholarship at Thomas Jefferson School of Law. TJSJL established this scholarship in collaboration with Lawyers Club of San Diego, a non-profit specialty bar association seeking to advance the status of women in the law, to support and improve the administration of justice and to promote equality of women and men in our society. Catrina Skor '11 was selected by Lawyers Club as the first recipient of this scholarship in 2010, Elizabeth Knowles '12 as the 2011 recipient and Amy Louttit, who will graduate this December, as last year's recipient.

The scholarship provides $2,000 to a TJSJL student who best personifies the mission of Lawyers Club, is academically among the top 50% of her or his law school class and has completed one full year of law school (30 units minimum). Students should be certain they meet these requirements before submitting an application. The scholarship is to be used for tuition and/or books. Also, students should check with TJSJL's Financial Assistance Office to determine if receipt of this scholarship would impact their financial assistance.

The scholarship will be officially awarded at the Lawyers Club annual Holiday Luncheon in December, which is attended by members of the local bench and other members of San Diego's legal community. Thomas Jefferson School of Law demonstrates its support of Lawyers Club as a "Benefactor" and will have a table at the Holiday Luncheon, at which our scholarship recipient will sit with Dean Tom Guernsey and/or other members of the TJSJL community.

Professor K.J. Greene Industry Event Presentation

Professor K.J. Greene was invited to be a special guest speaker at the San Diego Entertainment Industry Mixer (SDEIM) at the House of Blues in Downtown San Diego on Thursday, September 12.

"These industry events showcase creative artists from film to music, and I enjoy speaking to people who have big dreams," said Professor Greene. "These type of events can also provide opportunities for our students to meet potential clients and learn the industry."

TJSL student Precious Acker 1L attended the event and had a positive experience.

"The SDEIM event was refreshing and uplifting," said Acker. "The event not only featured opportunities to network with individuals from all aspects of the entertainment industry, but also served as a platform to encourage lasting relationship for continuous growth and success in San Diego's Entertainment community. From the inspirational speech given by Professor K.J. Greene illustrating the vast possibilities of the entertainment industry to the electrifying music of Jonny Tarr and DJ Noel 2033 and MikeBone collaboration, this month's event demonstrated the unique talent and strong presence the Entertainment community brings to San Diego."

Universities across the country continue to struggle to comply with Title IX and provide women with opportunities to participate in intercollegiate athletics. The NCAA has suggested adding opportunities for women in bowling, equestrian and rowing. States like Florida, however, sponsor strong and growing interscholastic women's football programs. Which is the better approach? That issue and more will be discussed at this Conference presented by the Center for Sports Law and Policy at the Thomas Jefferson School of Law.
